

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The network system is configured to execute communications between a management server and plural scanners by using the http, whereby the management server is able to execute the operation instructions to the scanners. Thus, the invention provides an image reader that achieves to enhance operability and controllability, utilizing the conditions of the image readers being connected to the network.